

Reagan slams insanity plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked Congress on Monday to bar anyone like the man who shot him, John Hinckley Jr., from pleading innocent by reason of insanity.

Reagan shook his head "no" when Hinckley's acquittal in June triggered revival of an earlier administration effort to restrict the insanity defense. If it were law at the time, Hinckley could not get the insanity test.

The administration proposal, which also has provisions to make it harder to convict because of tainted evidence, has not even reached the floor during the current session in state courts, has practically no support in Congress. He denied it was simply to win favor in this campaign season.

In a brief statement to reporters, Reagan said the administration hopes to "simplify the justice system and make it more likely that those who commit crimes pay a price."

"The bill would not apply in all those situations where a person claimed they couldn't control their behavior, or they heard voices or they had some religious impulse to commit a crime."

Associate Attorney General Rudolph W. Giuliani explained that the bill would limit the use of the insanity defense by redefining insanity to the extent that the government would only have to prove the defendant had the knowledge and intent to commit a crime.

The insanity defense could still apply "in a situation where a person didn't know what they were doing, someone who had the mental age of a two-year-old or believed that they were shooting at a tree when in fact they were shooting at a human being," Giuliani said.

It would not apply in situations where a person claimed he couldn't control his behavior, heard voices or had some religious impulse to commit a crime, he said.

Giuliani added that the redefinition would eliminate the vast majority of insanity pleas in federal criminal cases. Such cases are relatively rare because most violent crimes are violations of state law, rather than federal law.

Giuliani predicted the measure would practically eliminate the parade of psychiatrists testifying before a jury as to the defendant's state of mind at the time a crime was committed.

Should the administration proposal be adopted, psychiatric testimony would more likely be heard only by a judge during the pre-sentencing procedures following a defendant's conviction.

Another major section of the bill would tighten what is known as the exclusionary rule, which provides that prosecutors may not introduce at trial illegally gathered evidence.

113 hurt, 46 killed in jet crash

MALAGA, Spain (AP) — A chartered DC-10 loaded with Americans heading home from a Spanish vacation crashed on takeoff Monday, skidded across a highway and caught fire, killing at least 46 people and possibly as many as 77.

Officials said 113 others were injured, 14 of them seriously.

Many of the victims apparently burned to death in the tail section of the Spantax Airlines jetliner, which was bound for New York from this Mediterranean resort in southern Spain. It was carrying a full complement of 380 passengers and a crew of 18, the airline said.

"The rear exits did not work," said Hal Lavine of Tamavac, Fla., one of the survivors. "People pushed forward. There was screaming and panic. A big cloud of black smoke poured into the cabin."

He said he believed many of the passengers in the rear were overcome by smoke and unable to get out in time.

The Spanish transportation minister, Luis Gamir, said at an airport news conference Monday night that 46 people were known dead, including two who died of injuries in Carlos Haya Hospital, and 31 others were missing. He said 83 of the injured remained hospitalized.

Rescuers will continue to search for victims in the wreckage through the night, Gamir said.

He said a complete list of victims was not expected to be released until today.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Madrid said 210 American citizens and 85 Spaniards residing in the United States were aboard the plane, Flight No. 965, originating in Madrid with a stopover in Malaga. He said the embassy did not know the names or the number of Americans killed or hospitalized.

Candace David, a tour broker that organizes tours and sells them to travel agencies, said in Miami that the agency had booked 208 travelers for a two-week tour of Spain that started Aug. 30 from New York.

Leonard Lansburgh, president of the agency, said the people were from all over the United States and were probably not associated with any particular group. He said the majority of the Americans were from the New York area.

Civil Air Authority investigators said preliminary findings pointed to engine failure as a cause of the crash. The pilot tried to bring the plane down immediately following liftoff and one of the engines was found in a field near the crash site.

Bill Duane of New York City said he and his wife became separated during the scramble to evacuate, but that he found her later outside the wreckage. He also said the cabin's ceiling fell in, which added to the panic.

"We ran to a concrete bridge that goes over a railroad track and watched the plane," he said. "The tail was on fire. We stood there for about five minutes and that was too much."

A New Yorker who did not want to be identified said he jumped down a chute from the front of the plane and ran to a hill, watching the fire spread until "by the end, the flames were engulfing the entire plane."

Witnesses said the pilot, identified by Spantax as Juan Perez, died about the time the plane bounced on takeoff by reversing engines. Duane said he thought the plane's front tire exploded but that the pilot did not have enough runway to brake.

The crash was the worst in Spain since March 27, 1977, when 588 people were killed in Tenerife on the Spanish Canary Islands after a Royal Dutch KLM 747 slammed into a Pan Am 747 taxiing on the runway. That crash was the worst in aviation history.

Israeli jets disregard cease-fire

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli jets blasted Lebanon and Palestinian military positions Monday in the Bekaa Valley, killing 30 soldiers and guerrillas, according to Lebanese radio station.

Israeli air strikes heightened the possibility of a confrontation between Israeli and Syrian soldiers in Lebanon. It was the fourth time in five days that Israeli warplanes made strikes against Syria, using against so-called Syrian violations of the cease-fire.

Israeli said attacks on Syrian missile batteries and Lebanese Liberation Organization positions ended Sunday afternoon.

Israeli and privately-owned Lebanese radio stations called the air assaults the heaviest mounted against the Syrians in the Bekaa since a fire July 23 in east Lebanon. A leftist radio in Lebanon warned a "new round of full-scale warfare" began.

Israeli command said one SAM-9 missile was destroyed in the late air assaults and ended its determination not to allow the Syrian to use any anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon. It said it destroyed six Soviet-made SAM-9 missile batteries in the same area over the past days.

Estimated 25,000 Syrian troops are in eastern Lebanon with PLO forces in the north and east. PLO evacuation from its Beirut stronghold. Syrian troops moved into Lebanon to end 1975-76 Lebanese civil war.

Associated Press quoted an unidentified Syrian spokesman as saying Israel had "provoked" the cease-fire and made a total of 227 strikes during which Syrian positions in Lebanon were bombed.

Radio quoted the spokesman as saying two soldiers were killed in the attacks and anti-aircraft pieces and two anti-aircraft guns damaged.

Protesters charge Vatican officials deny Israeli charges

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican on Monday rejected Israeli charges that the church kept silent about the Nazi massacre of Jews in World War II. The Vatican said it was not involved in the meeting to meet with PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

In an unusually tough statement, the Vatican called the accusation an "insult to the truth."

Representatives of international Jewish organizations, including the American Jewish Archives, said the audience scheduled for Wednesday, made a formal appeal to the Vatican. Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, sworn enemy of the Jewish state, does not recognize Israel's existence.

The Vatican defended the record of the Roman Catholic Church in saving Jews during World War II and that Pope John Paul II has spoken out against the tide on many occasions, including during a 1979 visit to Nazi death camp at Auschwitz in his native Poland.

27 drug users and dealers arrested

Policemen from five Utah County agencies arrested 27 drug users and dealers early Saturday morning. The American Fork police chief said this was the biggest operation he could remember in the history of Northern Utah County.

Utah County. Utah County Attorney Noall Wootton said the arrests were "rare and unusual, more like a metropolitan police operation."

"We believe there are significant differences between them (Nielson and Beckham) and those differences would be of interest to the 3rd District voters," he added.

Lee Farnsworth, campaign manager for Nielson, said Ruff is continuing to reaffirm the same misrepresentations.

"They are using the same confused logic," he said. Farnsworth also said that Beckham's camp was using a perversion of rational thinking and actual lies.

The Ruff-PAC ad presented the differences between the two candidates by documenting Nielson's voting record where they said he had voted to increase taxes. The ad also mentioned the Utah Education Association's endorsement of Nielson and described it as an "ultra-liberal organization."

Nielson had asked for an apology from both the Ruff-PAC organization and Beckham and said all the charges made by his opponent were either false or so distorted that all the items must be considered false.

Ruff countered this request during the press conference by saying, "Mr. Nielson had asked Mr. Beckham and Ruff-PAC for an apology for the ad. Can you give me one reason under heaven why I should apologize for an accurate, meticulously researched document?"

"The price of my integrity, if converted to dollars, is in the tens of millions."

Ruff also countered "negative campaigning" charges made by the Nielson committee. "At no time have I, or any members of my staff, bragged about being specialists in 'negative campaigning.'"

"Over the years I have been very controversial," Ruff said. "But in all the years I've been publishing, the one thing which has never been challenged is my personal integrity. The price of my integrity, if converted to dollars, is in the tens of millions."

Ruff also mentioned during the conference that Charles Ackerson, the chairman of the Utah Republican Party, had, at first, been very negative toward the advertisement.

At annual president's Devotional Pres. Hinckley to speak

President Gordon B. Hinckley, counselor in the First Presidency of the LDS Church, will speak today during the traditional president's Devotional at Brigham Young University.

Single railroad company will serve 21 states

ICC approves merger of 3 railroads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Monday approved the merger of three Western railroads, the Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Western Pacific, into a single line that will serve 21 states from the Puget Sound to the Gulf coast.

Despite protests from competing railroads, the Interstate Commerce Commission said shippers and the public will benefit from the combination. The railroads are expected to begin formal merger proceedings within 30 days.

The prospective merger has been one of the most controversial in recent years, with other western railroads claiming it will create a powerful rail system that will rob them of business and threaten their existence. But the ICC, by a 5-1 vote, rejected those arguments.

Instead, the commission said, shippers will be better served by the single line that would allow goods to go directly across two-thirds of the nation.

"With this decision the commission has endorsed a private-sector proposal that will enhance efficiency and competition while providing improved service to shippers," said ICC chairman Reagen Taylor.

The merger brings together two highly profitable rail lines — the Union Pacific and the Missouri Pacific — which together reported total profits of $315 million last year. Under the proposal, the much smaller Western Pacific will become a division of the Union Pacific.

The new railroad, covering 22,800 miles of track, will become the third largest in terms of track miles and the second largest in terms of revenue. Last year the three railroads had a combined total of $4.2 billion in revenue.

While approving the merger, the ICC expressed concern about competition in a number of areas along the new rail line's route. But it said it was removing any "significant competitive problems" by granting competing lines the right to use the new railroad's tracks in certain areas.

For example, the Southern Pacific Railroad, which had strongly fought the merger proposal, must be allowed to use the Union Pacific's track between Kansas City and St. Louis, saving it an estimated $100 million in costs to rehabilitate a parallel line.

Donovan still cleared after second inquiry

NEW YORK (AP) — A special prosecutor said Monday that a renewed inquiry had again found insufficient evidence to conclude that Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan was associated with mobsters while a construction company executive.

Prosecutor Leon Silverman said he had investigated various reports, including allegations that Donovan had met with mobsters, funneled Teamsters' union political contributions and was present when a kickback was offered.

Silverman said he continued to be concerned by the number of allegations tying Donovan to organized crime.

Makes statement

Donovan said in a brief statement from Washington: "It is tempting, and probably politically orthodox, for me to say how pleased and gratified I am that this entire matter can now be consigned to the historians.

"But," he added, "I am not pleased and I am not gratified."

"I have always known that the charges against me were lies and I have told you so," Donovan said. "I believe the public, with their American sense of fair play, shares my anger," he said.

Donovan was investigated on perjury charges before a Senate committee for denying mob ties and the witnessing of an illegal labor peace payoff.

Slave descendant sues Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A 48-year-old woman descended from an 18th century slave and a white planter testified Monday against a Louisiana law that permits her to be classified as black because she has more than one 32nd "Negro blood."

Susan Guillory Phipps is one of six members of a Lake Charles-area family suing to have the state Bureau of Vital Records change the racial classification on their birth certificates from black to white.

The state refused to do so under a 1970 law declaring that anyone with at least one 32nd "Negro blood" can be legally classified as black. The law was intended to reform an old Jim Crow statute that relied on "common report" in determining an infant's race, according to Mrs. Phipps' attorney, Brian Begue.

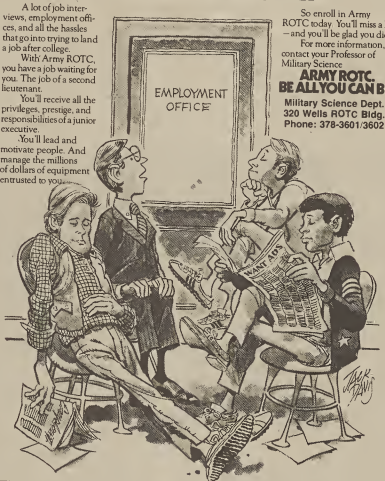

"I am white," the light-skinned woman with Caucasian features and straight black hair told a hearing officer in New Orleans district court.

Mrs. Phipps, who described herself as the darkest member of her family, said other relatives were reluctant to testify for fear the state would change the birth certificates of their blond-haired, blue-eyed children from white to black.

Begue argued that the very practice of assigning racial designation on birth certificates is unconstitutional, and that the one-32nd standard is an inaccurate test of racial makeup.

Begue said the matter was turned over to a hearing officer because of the volumes of evidence, including genealogical charts spanning seven generations and an extensive family photo record.

Huskies capture No. 1 for first time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
For the first time in its history, the University of Washington is the No. 1 team in college football.

The Huskies replaced Pitt at the top of The Associated Press poll Monday, while Florida also jumped to its highest ranking ever — fifth place — and the Oklahoma Sooners became the first casualty of the season, dropping out of the Top Twenty after losing to West Virginia.

Pitt and Washington had been 1-2 in the preseason and first regular-season polls. But the Huskies vaulted over the Panthers by swamping Texas-El Paso 55-0, while Pitt was posting a sloppily played 7-6 triumph over North Carolina.

Washington, which had never been higher than third since the AP ratings began in 1936, received 28 first-place votes and 1,132 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of 60 sports writers and sportscasters. Pitt totaled 16 first-place ballots and 1,078 points.

"It doesn't make any difference," Pitt Coach Foge Fazio said when informed of the new ratings. "I never said we were the No. 1 team in the nation. But when the No. 1 team plays No. 5 (North Carolina's ranking last week), it's not supposed to be a blowout, by any means. Now that we're No. 2 we've just got to try harder."

Nebraska and Alabama held onto the third and fourth positions. Nebraska received eight first-place votes and 1,073 points for a 42-7 trouncing of Iowa, while Alabama, a 45-7 winner over Georgia Tech, received the remaining six first-place votes and 1,021 points.

North Carolina, fifth last week, slipped to 11th, while Florida jumped from 11th to fifth with 886 points in the wake of a 17-9 victory over Southern California. The Gators' highest ranking previously was seventh.

Southern Methodist climbed from eighth to sixth with 872 points by crushing Tulane 51-7 and Georgia slipped from sixth to seventh with 846 points despite a 17-14 triumph over Brigham Young.

Tenn State, which outlasted Maryland 39-31, fell from seventh to eighth with 769 points. Arkansas, a 38-0 winner over Tulsa, rose from 13th to ninth with 683 points, while Oklahoma, which had been No. 3, dropped out of the Top Twenty. Michigan jumped from 12th to 10th with 667 points by downing Wisconsin 20-9.

The Second Ten consists of North Carolina, Ohio State, Arizona State, UCLA, Miami, Clemson, West Virginia Texas, Southern Cal and Notre Dame.

Last week, it was Florida, Michigan, Arkansas, Ohio State, Arizona State, Clemson, Texas, UCLA, Miami and Notre Dame.

West Virginia replaced Oklahoma in the Top Twenty by coming from behind to beat the Sooners 41-27.

Rams hail win at last

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Colorado State University's football team never stopped believing it could win, even through a dismal 1981 season that set a new NCAA record for single-season losses.

And now the Rams have made believers of their fans — and the Wyoming Cowboys.

With one big offensive play and a tenacious defense that forced four turnovers, the Rams snapped their 14-game losing streak here Saturday with a 9-3 victory over Western Athletic Conference rival Wyoming.

"It was the biggest Christmas present we've ever had," beamed new coach Leon Fuller in the locker room afterward. "I can't tell you how good I feel. We've been talking about this for a long time."

Colorado State's last victory was Nov. 15, 1980, against Texas-El Paso. Since then, the hapless Rams had lost 14 straight, including a record 12 games last season.

"You hear about the Bottom 10 and everything," quarterback Terry Nugent added. "You never like to think about things like that, but deep down it hurts inside."

Nugent, a junior from Elk Grove, Calif., completed eight of 18 passes for 166 yards, including a 55-yard touchdown to flanker Jeff Raikes late in the first half that proved the margin of victory.

Raider Allen shines; ref sacks Montana

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Southern California's newest team, the Los Angeles Raiders, is off and running — led by Southern Cal's Heisman Trophy winner, rookie Marcus Allen.

Allen, among a spate of runners to break the 100-yard barrier in the 1982 season openers, helped run the National Football League's defending champions into the ground Sunday.

He picked up 116 yards and a touchdown on 23 carries and added 64 yards on four receptions as the Raiders, formerly of Oakland, returned to the Bay Area and defeated the San Francisco 49ers 23-17.

"I just tried to run as hard as I could," said Allen. "I just came out here today to do my job. The guys up front did a good job. We ran a lot of plays that we used in practice but didn't show in preseason games."

"You could see his potential in training camp," Raiders quarterback Jim Plunkett said. "But I really didn't think he'd be so good so soon."

How good? "Marcus is a superb football player — a great one, not just good," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh exclaimed. "I imagine he'll be the NFL rookie of the year."

The Super Bowl champions knew they had serious problems even before a referee sacked quarterback Joe Montana early in the second half.

"I'll take a sack any way I can get it," said L. A. defensive end Dave Browning, credited with the unusual sack of Montana during Sunday's game.

The 49ers were in a third-and-one situation at the Raider's 37-yard line. The Raiders sent in some extra men on a pass rush. Montana backtracked and finally, collided with referee Jerry Markbreit and stumbled, making an easy touchdown for Browning.

"I wanted to go up to the ref and shake his hand. But they don't like us touching officials," said Browning. "I heard the ref cussing himself out after the play."

"Improbable trio" leads WAC race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A most improbable trio tied for the lead in the Western Athletic Conference football standings.

Granted, it's still early in the season, but only the most prescient of pre-season prognosticators would have suggested that Colorado State, Air Force and New Mexico would be occupying the top rung at any stage of the 1982 campaign.

CSU, after all, was 0-

12 a year ago, becoming the first team in college football history to lose 12 games in a single season. Air Force was 4-7 a year ago, and New Mexico was 4-7.

Yet all three teams are tied for the WAC lead with 1-0 records. The Rams gave there with a 9-3 upset in the rain over Wyoming in Fort Collins Saturday. Air Force did it by continuing its mastery over San Diego State, besting the Aztecs 44-32 at the academy. New Mexico went to 1-0 a week ago, knocking off Wyoming.

Just as surprising as the front-runners is Wyoming's lowly position. The Cowboys were expected to challenge for the title, but they're now in the WAC cellar at 0-2.

Steelers daze Cowboys shattering NFL record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
IRVING, Texas — Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw, drilling passes to wide receivers John Stallworth and Jim Smith, dazed Dallas with three touchdown strikes as the Steelers defeated the rallying Cowboys 36-28 in the National Football League's first Monday night game of the season.

Dallas' NFL record of 17 consecutive opening victories was shattered by Danny White as starting quarterback in 18 games.

Pittsburgh exploded for 17 points in the third quarter to overcome a 14-13 deficit as the Steelers capitalized on a blocked punt and two interceptions. Rookie Gary Anderson, obtained from Buffalo last week, kicked a 40-yard field goal with 1:02 left to lock up the victory.

The Steelers had to overcome a four-touchdown pass blitz by White, including two scoring strikes in the final quarter.

Rookie end Keith Willis blocked a Danny White punt to set up the go-ahead touchdown on Frank Pollard's 1-yard plunge.

An interference call on cornerback Dennis Thurman, who fouled Stallworth, put the Steelers just inches away from the Dallas goal.

Interceptions by Rick Woods and Jack Ham put the Steelers in position for Bradshaw's second touchdown pass to Smith, a 15-yarder, and Anderson's 20-yard field goal.

Stallworth, who caught an 8-yard scoring pass in the first half, grabbed a 21-yard pass to make the field goal possible.

Anderson also kicked a 43-yard field goal in the fourth quarter before Dallas rallied as White floated a 45-yard touchdown pass to Tony Hill and a 5-yard touchdown flip to tight end Billie Joe DuFre.

Bradshaw's other touchdown pass came in the second period, a 7-yard strike to Smith to give Pittsburgh a temporary 13-7 lead.

White completed touchdown passes of 4 yards to Drew Pearson and 12 yards to Doug Cosbie in the first half.

Despite offer, NFL to strike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
National Football League players will go out on strike during the third or fourth weekend of the season "unless there is some dramatic development" in negotiations, according to the executive director of the NFL Players Association.

Ed Garvey said Sunday — the opening day of the 1982 regular season — that the NFLPA's nine-man executive committee will meet next Monday to set a strike date.

There have been no negotiations since last Wednesday, when the NFL Management Council, representing the owners, presented a proposal for a five-year package that Jack Donlan, the management council's executive director, valued at $1.5 billion. The union rejected the proposal almost immediately.

Donlan said the union setting up a strike meeting after the owners have agreed to more than $600 million in new money is consistent with management's viewpoint that Garvey wants nothing but a strike.

Expos end 5-month sleep

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
For five months they had been the wallflowers of the National League East, standing idly by while guys from St. Louis and Philadelphia took turns in first place. But now, three weeks from season's end, the Montreal Expos are finally flexing their muscles.

Just at the right time. "We haven't reached our potential," said Warren Cromartie. "Now's the time we're going to have to do it, in September. I love September. I've always done well in September."

The rest of the Expos are finding it most agreeable, too. After falling to seven games back as late as Aug. 20, the Expos moved to within 2½ games of first-place St. Louis with an 11-3 thrashing of the Chicago Cubs on Sunday.

The victory, which improved the Expos' September record to 7-3, completed a three-game sweep in which Montreal outscored the Cubs 28-11.

In other National League games, New York topped St. Louis 4-1, but the Cards remained one-half game ahead of second-place Philadelphia as the Phillies fell to Pittsburgh 4-2. Atlanta staged a gallant ninth-inning comeback to edge Cincinnati, 4-3, while Los Angeles downed Houston 7-3.

Y's Kittens beat UNLV; to battle at Ricks

The BYU junior varsity football team will put its 1-0 record on the line against Ricks College this Saturday in Rexburg, Idaho.

The BYU Kittens are coming off of a 37-7 victory over Nevada-Las Vegas last Friday night.

Three JV quarterbacks, Mike Young, Jeff Wilcox and Bob Jensen, combined to complete 17 passes of 37 attempts for 215 yards and one touchdown. Jensen rushed for two additional scores.

The offense was not alone in the contest. The defense pushed the Rebels back for a net total of minus 33 yards and the special teams registered a touchdown on a 55-yard punt return by Paul Crawford.

Indians go Vegas way

SPOKANE (AP) — The Spokane Indians' Pacific Coast League baseball franchise is moving to Las Vegas, Nev., after 24 years here, a team stockholder said today.

Frank Knott, a minority owner of the Triple-A club, said stockholders voted 8-7 this morning in favor of the move.

Majority stockholders all voted to move the team, thus assuring the sale, Knott said.

Winner of the PCL's Northern Division title for 1982, the Indians lost the league championship to the Albuquerque Dukes four games to two on Sunday.

The franchise came to Spokane in 1958.

Jimmy still hot at 30

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
You'd have to have buttermilk instead of blood coursing through your veins not to have gotten a rousing charge out of Jimmy Connors' fourth U.S. Open tennis victory Sunday at Flushing Meadow.

Twenty thousand spectators went ecstatically mad and TV sets jumped across the land.

The aging comebacker, whom tennis galleries once loved to hate, brought the crowd in the packed stadium stands leaping to its feet in the initial moments of his dramatic four-set triumph over Ivan Lendl, the grim, hollow-cheeked young Czechoslovakian, who 24 hours earlier had humiliated three-time winner John McEnroe.

Few conceded the 5-foot-10, 150-pound Connors a chance against Lendl, who blasts 112 mph serves and hits incessant sledgehammer shots until his foe — as in the case of McEnroe Saturday — gives up in sheer frustration.

But Lendl, only 22, was not playing McEnroe this time. He was playing Ol' Jimbo, the alley fighter, by his own admission at the crossroads of his career at age 30, but a guy who has never found the word "quit" in a dictionary.

In the end, it was a victory for grit and grit-tie, guts and gambling instincts over youth, power and iron discipline.

The match was a stark contrast to the semifinal between McEnroe and Lendl in which Lendl's power destroyed the artistry of the man acclaimed by some to be the finest talent in the game.

In the men's final, there was no whining from Connors, a scrappy old warrior who could take his hardest licks and respond in double measure.

Primrose viola archive studied at Y

By JOHN MYERS
Staff Writer

Dr. David Dalton, professor of music, recently returned from the 10th Viola Congress in Stuttgart, Germany, where he lectured about the Primrose International Viola Archive.

Dalton is the archivist of the Primrose archive in the Harold B. Lee Library. A viola concert paying tribute to the late William Primrose, after whom the archive is named, will be at the Madsen Recital Hall on Wednesday.

Primrose was considered to be the world's foremost violist before his death last May, Dalton said. The International Viola Society offered Primrose's memorabilia and private collection of music to BYU to be studied by students, teachers and scholars. "This collection was formerly housed in Salzburg, Austria," Dalton said. "We (BYU) bought it and added it to our own holdings. BYU archives are one of the largest in the world."

Dalton said there were about 2,000 pieces of music in the archive and he is trying to acquire more material. The archive also contains photos, manuscripts, records and pamphlets of Primrose and his career.

The International Viola Society invited Dalton to attend its congress and lecture on the archive. Sponsored by BYU, Dalton went to Stuttgart, where he presented a slide lecture to violists from around the world.

The congress meets in North America on the odd years and in Europe on the even years.

Dalton performed at the congress in Gatz, Austria, in 1980, lectured at congresses in London in 1978 and in Bonn, Germany, in 1976 and was host for the congress here at BYU in 1979.

Explore music

"The purpose of the congress is to explore the music for the viola, present established performers and introduce new artists," Dalton said. "I enjoy meeting with my colleagues from around the world. There is strong fraternal spirit."

According to Dalton, the last congress met in many locations, including a concert hall, an opera house and one of the largest churches in Stuttgart.

He said the congress commissioned some leading

German composers to compose for and perform on the viola.

Dalton said the congress' purpose isn't to establish concerts for performers of the viola. Some rising artists are invited to perform for the congress, but Dalton said this does not guarantee stardom in the viola world.

Competitions

Dalton said the International Viola Society has set up competitions for violists. The first one was at Snowbird, Utah.

The society sponsors winners on recital tours. The congress, however, is a place to learn and study, not a place for competition, he said.

Dalton said the North American congresses draw bigger crowds than those in Europe. The U.S. chapter has the largest membership in the society.

Old manuscripts

He said Europe has more research going on, however, because more old manuscripts are located there.

Dalton's close association with Primrose was instrumental in BYU acquiring the archive.

Dalton said he knew Primrose for more than 20 years and persuaded him to live in Provo, where he spent the last years of his life.

Dalton said he hopes the archive will grow and continue to gather artifacts so that BYU can become recognized around the world for its collection. He said it would bring great honor to BYU to have such a reputation.

Primrose will be honored Wednesday in "A Tribute to William Primrose," featuring Emanuel Vardi on the viola, assisted by Ricklen Nobis on the piano and Sarah Bullen on the harp.

The recital will be in the Madsen Recital Hall HFAC at 8 p.m.

Miss America '83 begins her reign

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — The new Miss America, a 25-year-old blonde who began singing in a shower stall and would most like to meet entrepreneur Ted Turner, says she wants to become a role model to other young women.

"I want to set an example," said Debra Sue Maffett, the former Miss California, after just one hour of sleep on Saturday.

The blue-eyed, 115-pound graduate of Lamar University in Beaumont, Texas, wearing the rhinestone-studded crown she received the night before, then set off on her first round of personal appearances as Miss America 1983.

She attended a condominium ground-breaking ceremony in Atlantic City and prepared for a drive to New York and appearances there Monday.

Maffett, of Anaheim,

Calif., who as Miss America gets a $20,000 scholarship, should make more than $100,000 from public appearances, modeling and performances.

Her business manager, Bob Bryan, said Maffett is booked solid, working every other day through Christmas. "There are so many things I want to do, I wish there were five Debras," said the 5-foot-7 Maffett, who won talent and swimsuit preliminary competitions leading to the finals on Saturday.

But she suffered three defeats before winning the Miss California title and setting off for the Boardwalk.

Born in Pittsburgh, Kan., Maffett said her father was transferred to Texas by the Navy. After living in Corpus Christi and Houston, her family cleared a parcel of land and built their home in Cut and Shoot, pop. 568.

Her father, Ron, said that in order to put herself through school, Maffett began work in the doughnut shop at Weingarten's grocery, where her 20-year-old sister now works.

"When I turned 18, I was considered legal and my parents told me, 'You're on your own,' Maffett said, adding that her parents told her they would be around for her if she needed them.

So she branched out on her own and began to develop a singing career after getting the courage to brighten her vocal talents by practicing in the shower and in front of audiences.

Maffett's history in pageants began with three defeats in the Miss Texas Pageant.

"I didn't think I would ever enter another pageant," said Maffett, who measures 35-22-35 and is considered a bit old for such contests.

But she moved to California, believing she could best develop her talent there and become a talk-show host in a large metropolitan market.

When she decided to return to school, a friend advised her to try for Miss California to win scholarship money or tuition.

She already has a bachelor's degree in general studies with an emphasis in fine arts.

When she completes her duties as Miss America, she wants to go back to school for undergraduate and graduate degrees in music.

Billy Taylor jazz trio to perform at Y

Y Taylor, often acknowledged as America's most jazz pianist, will bring his acclaimed Billy Taylor Trio to the de Jong Concert Hall HFAC for a performance of "America's Classical Music" Sept. 28 at 8 p.m. The concert is part of the 1982-83 Performing Artists Series at BYU. In addition, Taylor will conduct a free master class for BYU music students and local jazz enthusiasts Sept. 28 from 2 to 4 p.m. on the de Jong Concert Hall stage. Taylor was the first to make the statement that jazz is not just a musical style, but a way of life. "I don't consider myself a jazz pianist, but American classical music has contributed much more to the culture of this country than many of us realize," Taylor, who has worked with such jazz greats as Miles Davis, Dizzy Gillespie, Billie Holiday and Milt Jackson, is a music educator as well as performer.

He recently received a doctorate in musicology from the University of Massachusetts and has taught at Howard University, the Manhattan School of Music, Columbia and Yale.

A pianist, recording artist, arranger, conductor, actor and author, Taylor has penned more than 300 compositions.

They include a work composed for the Utah Symphony, "Suite for Jazz Piano and Orchestra," which he premiered, as well as one of the theme songs for the American civil rights movement, "I Wish I Knew How It Would Feel To Be Free."

Joining with Taylor for the BYU concerts are

Keith Copeland on drums, whose "strong but sensitive playing" was praised by the New York Times, and Victor Gaskin, a longtime member of the Lews McCann Trio and one of the country's most successful jazz bass players.

Taylor recently received the Peabody Award in broadcasting for his performance as host of "Jazz Alive" on National Public Radio.

He is also artistic editor for CBS TV's "Sunday Morning" program. "Make a Joyful Noise," Taylor's major new work for jazz piano and orchestra, commissioned by Tufts University, is scheduled to be performed by the Indianapolis Symphony this season.

Tickets for the concert are available at the music ticket office, HFAC.

TV shows contain comedy, escape

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This fall's crop of 24 new television shows is taking aim at the funny bone and escapism. Nine of the new shows are half-hour comedies and three are tongue-in-cheek action-adventures. The only drama among them, NBC's "St. Elsewhere," is also laced with black comedy.

When times are hard, show business also turns to escapism: escapism through larger-than-life characters — frequently rich ones — who have bizarre adventures in posh surroundings and exotic locales.

ABC's "Matt Houston" exudes wealth and power. Lee Horsley stars as a playboy detective who surrounds himself with beautiful women, fancy cars and costly gadgets.

Rock Hudson is a playboy detective with a Rolls Royce in NBC's "The Levitt Connection." NBC's "Knight Rider" has a millionaire mentor, and ABC's "The Quest" has not only wealth but royalty. In NBC's "Silver Spoons," Joel Higgins has more money than he can spend. The title of CBS' "Filthy Rich," speaks for itself.

The title character of NBC's "The Powers of Matthew Star" is a prince from another planet who has human powers.

In "Knight Riders," the car has superhuman powers.

NBC's "Gavin" stars Robert Ulrich as a former CIA agent whose adventures take him to the sun-drenched Caribbean, where some of the episodes were filmed.

"Raiders of the Lost Ark" inspired two series: ABC's "Tales of the Gold Monkey," about spies and intrigue in the pre-World War II South Pacific, and CBS' "Bring 'Em Back Alive," about spies and intrigue in pre-World War II Singapore.

NBC's "Voyagers" takes its cue from "Time Bandits."

The only series taken directly from a movie is CBS' "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," from the 1954 picture. It's now a contemporary family comedy-drama with music and dancing.

Music also figures in ABC's "Star in the Family," in which a fire captain's daughter becomes a singing star.

"All in the Family" has spun yet another series: CBS' "Gloria," starring Sally Struthers. Previous shows that sprang from "All in the Family" were "Maude," "Good Times," "The Jeffersons" and "Archie Bunker er's Place." Over all, third-place NBC's shows look the brightest and classiest.

First-place CBS' new shows look tired, with the exception of "Bring 'Em Back Alive."

Apathy, laziness weigh on district

Today is the day of Utah's primary election, the day in which one of two BYU professors will be chosen to represent the Republican party in November's general Congressional election. Chances are, many of you are learning of both facts for the first time by reading this editorial.

The results of a poll taken last week by KSL-TV show the level of political awareness in the new Third Congressional District to be nothing less than pitiful. Asked for the names of the candidates for the House seat, most respondents named senatorial candidates Orrin Hatch and Ted Wilson. Only 12.5 percent could correctly name the Republican candidates, Howard Nielson and Ray Beckham.

One can reasonably assume the vast majority of those eligible to vote in today's primary will not be able to correctly identify these candidates. It is a sad commentary on our community, state and nation that most Americans rarely take the trouble to exercise their rights to vote and become politically involved. By their negligence they allow themselves to be governed by a minority whose views may not agree with their own.

Is it not ironic that in our country, where citizens have as much say about their government as any people on earth, so few take advantage of their rights? Is it not ironic that many of those who complain most of our elected representatives will not take the time change them?

One of the greatest problems with our political system is not in the system at all, but in the apathy and laziness of the electorate.

The Daily Universe encourages the students, faculty and staff of BYU to take the time to participate in the American political system.

Students merit seats

It's amazing how ASBYU and the Special Events Office can find it impossible to fit 26,000 people into 36,000 seats and then turn around and say it's all because football tickets were too easy to get.

With that kind of logic, our ASBYU representatives are destined to be politicians.

What does Kevin Reeve mean when he says, "If I had it to do again, I'd probably make it more difficult to buy tickets just so we wouldn't sell out." Is he saying this is all the students' fault for buying the tickets?

Kevin's missing the point. The main reason people are upset is that, at a university that prides itself on honesty and integrity, he promised everyone who wanted a ticket would get one. "We have as many tickets as we can use, so there is no need to line up early," were the exact words of an advertisement.

Reeve says he got his information from Scott Williams, BYU special events director, who smugly says, "I can't be responsible for what Kevin's telling you."

Williams will tell you no one in the world thought the new stadium would sell out.

Interesting... Can he really be serious? Rumors about a sellout drifted from the fourth floor on the Wilkinson Center early last week. Some BYU employers even cancelled staff meetings early Thursday and counseled their student employees to get in line for tickets early because they had heard the supply would dwindle in spite of promises.

It's time our leaders realized that students should be treated like first class citizens in their own school. Without students there would be no football team, there would be no stadium and there probably wouldn't be much to Provo. Students should have first priority on seats at all BYU sporting events.

— Jay Evensen

YOU JUST KEEP IN FRONT OF ME, KID. OTHERWISE THAT MOB IS GOING TO FIND OUT WHO'S REALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS TICKET MESS.

We go to see flicks, not a circus

The behavior of students at BYU movies has often been criticized, with good reason but little result.

Anyone who has seen a campus movie has endured such distractions as babies who cry but aren't removed, viewers who discuss the plot aloud to their companions, people who laugh when an actor's lips move but no sound emerges, comedians in the audience who feel obliged to entertain those about them.

That is not to say that off-campus movies are free from loud talkers, popcorn crunchers or late arrivers. Nor is audience participation always bad. A roar of laughter at a funny situation or a few screams at a scary moment can heighten the effect of the movie.

But something about an inexpensive campus movie — perhaps because it is not considered a "real" movie — breaks down inhibitions against causing a disturbance or catching a few laughs at the expense of ruining the movie.

During the recent screening of "The Birds," laughter followed viewers' loud jokes and imitations of birdcalls — a typical occurrence at many campus movies. If this indicates that the majority of the audience wants these disturbances, then those who don't laugh are merely spoilsports and this editorial is out of place.

But it is more likely that most students go to watch the movie and want to hear what is said and to feel the suspense or other emotions the director intended them to feel.

So far, letters to the editor and constant angry "shut-ups" from the "spoilsports" in the audience haven't done the trick. Perhaps, before the movie starts, the projectionist should remind students they have come to see a motion picture, not a circus.

Pop this in your tapedeck and play it

ATTENTION, THOSE OF YOU WITH FANCY TAPE DECKS: In the near future, you may be spending a couple bucks more for a blank cassette tape. And if that fancy tape deck of yours goes on the fritz and you've got to check it, you may be paying a hefty surcharge more for a new one.

Inflation, right? Well, no. That will be there too.

But the extra charge, if effected, will be specially tacked on to audio tape and taping equipment, and it will be placed there by... you guessed it... Uncle Sam.

You may well ask what business the federal government has upping the price of your tape and equipment. None, of course. But then there's a lot of things the government does that it hasn't any business doing. This one, however, will sound particularly off-key to you college audiophiles.

Cutting out the static, here's the tune: Stuffed in the glove compartment of your jalopy or strewn about that mess you call an apartment, you've got a handful of Maxells, TDKs, or Memorex. You bought them blank, but that got kind of boring to listen to, so now they're filled with the rambunctious ramblings of the Go-Gos, Fleetwood Mac, Elvis Costello, The Police, an infinitum.

All your favorite disks are recorded on those cassettes. They were the only thing that stood between you and Mel Tillis or Tex Ritter on the drive across Wyoming or Nevada. You love them; they love you... and the record companies hate you.

They hate you because you stole that music. Admit it, not all those tapes came out of your records. You borrowed some from your roomie, your boy or girlfriend, or the person who sits next to you in class.

That saved you the cost of buying the records yourself.

SWITCH TRACKS: The record companies, by now, may already know, have been singing the blues for several years now. The market for LPs hasn't been exactly humming along. And with the recession, times are tough all over.

So the record companies, which had all along known that people like yourself were copying albums, decided it was time to do something about it.

Of course, you can probably see the bad vibes recording companies get when you tape your friends' records, but what if it's your record? In a special report for Rolling Stone Magazine (Sept. 16 issue), Michael Schrage writes: "When you buy a record, you really own it? The record companies say they do — completely and absolutely. ... You may have bought a record — but all you really own is the black vinyl. ... The only version of the music that copyright law entitles you to have for free, the industry insists, is the one you store in your memory."

The Mathias amendment would absolve you from any copyright penalty for copying an album in your home for your personal use, and would charge you, albeit indirectly, for that "privilege."

The logic of it plays a bit flat. While there's no denying that home taping is a wide-spread practice which does damage the record industry, the Mathias amendment causes more static than it filters out. It's analogous to raising the price of a Xerox copy because the machine is able to reproduce copyrighted sheet music. And it would give the record companies a share of tape sales revenues which they in no way deserve, no matter for what purpose the tape is used.

That's just the prelude. There are other questions — questions on the validity of music industry research figures, how surcharge money would be distributed to them, whether all their problems are due to home taping, ad nauseum — detailed in the RS article. But, on a 45, you've heard the song.

The amendment and its bill are now in the Senate Judiciary Committee. If it makes it to the floors of Congress, this writer hopes it won't become a hit.

Students react to football sellout

Actions 'moronic'

Editor:

Once again not only have the tickets for a BYU event been sold out, but the students as well. Words cannot sufficiently express my contempt for the moronic, irresponsible, unprofessional actions and comments of the ASBYU athletics committee.

It's painfully obvious that no one in authority knew what they were doing and ultimately lowered themselves to blaming each other and making soggy excuses.

Had they done proper research and still found that they didn't have enough tickets for distribution, they could at least have given fair warning rather than creating a Mickey Mouse promotional campaign that promised everything short of a free trip to Disneyland.

The hard truth is many students will be sitting home while committee members will be at the game in payment for a job not done.

Robert G. Davis

Aravada, Colo.

Rise and shout?

Oh, rise and shout, the tickets are out. All they can say is that they're sorry.

Have no doubt, they'll never run out, was their famous story.

But they go, and who was to know, that tickets could be any hotter. In praise of you, who counted wrong, we'll turn up our radios loud and true.

We'll hear the Cougars of BYU, and hear the Cougars of BYU.

Jeff Chandler

Morgan Hill, Calif.

Students shorted

You'd figure with a seating capacity of 60,000-plus, that BYU could accommodate all of its 26,000 students and still have plenty of seating for those people who contributed financially to the building of the stadium.

I'm not angry about not getting seats — even when we were told it didn't matter if we got our tickets on time.

I feel you made a serious error in printing this article. Don't you realize we (freshmen) have enough on our minds worrying about add/drops, classes, studies and a whole new way of life, to have to worry about a stupid tradition — a mere custom which dictates upperclass hatred toward all freshmen.

To the author, Karla Zauche, I find it difficult to fathom why you are even going to a school like BYU. People with hostilities like you do not belong in a Christian-oriented school like Brigham Young. You belong in a school of infidels, self-centered bigots who don't care for the feelings of others. You ought to be ashamed!

Thursday or Friday because there were plenty available. What really bothers me is that not even close to half the seating is allotted for the student body.

I realize that if it weren't for the contributors there would have been no expansion of the stadium. However, those who set up the allotment of seating (money hungry as they are) should realize that it is the student body who make up the football team. The student body has the most essential contribution; for without its players, what is an empty stadium? It's a two-way street, and the students are being pushed to the side.

Greg Frank

Claims in doubt

According to Kevin Reeve, Scott Williams promised unlimited seating Friday evening Mr. Williams denied having made this promise as well as denying any prior knowledge that anyone made such a promise. Corbin, Mr. Williams, every BYU football fan seemed to know about it. That is that under his direction limited tickets never existed; they were at a fixed ceiling of 17,000 mont ago.

Another claim made is that the 6,500 ticket increase over last year's allotment was deemed sufficient. The basis that no previous year had student ticket sellout. Anyone who wanted season tickets last year and was turned away knows better. (The 1,500 that were not "sold" we held back deliberately to be sold as game-by-game basis.)

If all the tickets really are gone, it is claimed, something could still be done to make amends if the responsible parties are willing to agree. Kevin Reeve has suggested a November showing of BYU home games on the Marriott Center screen. Unfortunately, this doesn't get them into the stadium, but it's better than nothing.

Letters to the editor

Opinion prompts response

Piece enraging

Editor: I am writing you in regards to the article printed on the Thursday, Sept. 9, issue entitled "Pity the ill freshmen."

I couldn't help but feel enraged when I read the "degradation of one's own kind." I was student body president of my high school when I was a senior — that's right, a senior — and my number one goal, along with the faculty and the school newspaper editors, was to break the wretched tradition of freshman-hating and to, instead, make the new members of our student body feel welcome. Sure, our editor received many "kill the freshmen" and anti-freshmen articles, but she at least had the integrity and sense not to print them.

I feel you made a serious error in printing this article. Don't you realize we (freshmen) have enough on our minds worrying about add/drops, classes, studies and a whole new way of life, to have to worry about a stupid tradition — a mere custom which dictates upperclass hatred toward all freshmen.

To the author, Karla Zauche, I find it difficult to fathom why you are even going to a school like BYU. People with hostilities like you do not belong in a Christian-oriented school like Brigham Young. You belong in a school of infidels, self-centered bigots who don't care for the feelings of others. You ought to be ashamed!

If a freshman class feels genuinely accepted and welcome in their new school, they will work harder than you could ever imagine to get involved, and to make BYU the school we all would like it to be.

A. Karl Kip

Frosh in control

Okay, so I can't even find my way to the Brigham Young statue to scream "this is the place!" And so what if I don't have to worry about the best standard since I can't even grow on But I can say: "I'm a freshman, and darn good at it!"

Being a freshman is an art. Do you know how hard it is to keep a "blatantly blank" expression on your face, have to get up an hour early just to practice in the mirror.

Freshmen also have the "special privilege" of saying things in an audacious manner and getting away with it. For example: "So, do you really use dog food to make Swedish meatballs?"

Let's face it. Freshmen are in an incredible power position. Ignorance is not only bliss, but an excuse for almost anything. "But Bishop, I honestly didn't know it was the girls' locker room."

So who is really in control? "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth." As for the "meek" freshmen class, we'll be planting stars with the campus.

Reagan rides Trojan horse

Editor:

Ronald Reagan's fiscal fantasies of slashing taxes 30 percent over three years, drastically increasing military spending and balancing the budget all at once have proven not only unrealistic but harmful to the American economy.

The president's condescending condemnation of Democratic overspending has come back to haunt him as he proposes record deficits caused by his own lack of foresight. Conservatives may excuse this budget because of trimmed-down social programs and beefed-up military appropriations, calling the former "semi-socialistic" and the latter patriotic. But the fact remains that, as editorialist Rodd Wagner put it, "those deficits and their attendant high interest rates are now the major obstacle to recovery and eventual long-term growth."

It has yet to be proven that the prosperous who benefit most from the supply-side tax breaks will use the new-found economic freedom to invest in Geneva Steel rather than joining another country club. Perhaps jobs will trickle down to this country's 9.8 percent unemployed.

David Stockman's interview with Atlantic Monthly was not a mistake, but a revelation that supply-side economics is merely a Trojan horse for the rich. That's not the line voters bought from Reagan in November, 1980. They fell for a simple solution to a complex problem — for baseball, apple pie and a smiling grandfather.

We'll see if the people vote for the smiling grandfather's policies in November, now that he's obviously mounted atop a Trojan horse.
